

Hope, Class of 2018

For me, it was, my family traveled a lot last year so I was able to do school at my own pace, and because regular school was too slow for me it helped me be able to learn but not be frustrated by not learning enough. I was doing a lot of research because we were about to travel and I was trying to find a school that would work so I could travel with my parents instead of just staying at home. SC Whitmore was the best option for me. If you're not a self-motivated student it's hard. You have to keep yourself on track, but it is a really good option if you have a unique home life or you're traveling a lot or regular school just isn't right for you. It's a really good option. I'm going to Lander University. I'm going to be in their Honors dorms, and I'm studying Business Management and Pre-Law. Eventually, I can own my own law firm. That is the goal.
