

Alivia Ayers, Class of 2019

I was sick a lot so like I did not have a lot of make-up days. So I was going to miss a lot of school and have to retake a lot of classes. So Whitmore helped me not have to do that. At the Whitmore School, I have been able to do everything at my own pace. I am graduating a year early, going into college with six credit hours as well. I got accepted into Columbia College and I will be studying Community and Public Health. If someone was thinking about going to Whitmore School, I would definitely recommend it because they will get to do everything at their own pace and the teachers and guidance counselors will always be there to help them.
